EDGEFIELD C. H.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1845.

DEFERRED ARTICLES.

COLD WEATHER.

For several days after the rain which recently fell, the weather was quite cool. The temperature was like that of November. Since October set in, the temperature has been quite pleasant.

CATIPILLARS.

We learn from our exchanges that these destructive insects are making serious ravages upon the grass, grain, fodder and vegetation generally, in several of the upper Districts,-We understand that a worm or catipillar of a destructive character, has made its appearance likewise in Edgefield.

OUTRAGE AT LEXINGTON C. H. We learn from a communication in the Temperance Advocate of the 1st inst., that the Court House at Lexington was forcibly entered, and that the bust of Judge O'Neal which was placed in a room in the building, was taken out by some person unknown, and carried into the street and treated in a shocking manner. Great excitement among the friends of the Judge, was produced by this affair.

CORN.

We perceive from the advertisements of Messrs. J. J. Howard, H. L. Jeffers, Pearson & Walker, merchants in Hamburg, that an abundance of corn will be kept constantly on hand to supply the wants of the planters and money to a young woman, and procured others. If necessary it is probable that other gentlemen in Ramburg will also keep corn enough for the public. In all appearances, there is no probability that corn will bring an extraordinary price in Augusta, Hamburg, Columbia or Charleston, during the year .-We in common with the rest of the community, feel under great obligation to these commercial houses, which have taken such prompt and efficient means to meet the pressing necessities of the people in this season of suffer-

From the Boston Temperance Record. CONFESSION OF JON. B. GOUCH.

We hasten to lay before our numerous readers the confession of John B. Gough, made at Roxbury, before a committee of the Washingtonians.

Mr. Gough appeared before the committee at the hour appointed. His appearance was much as heretofore, with the exception of a fallen and softened expression of countenance, which became him on so peculiar an occasion. Having been requested to speak, he gave utterance to the following confession. which was pronounced in a firm and manly but modest tone :-

Beloved Brethren-To me this occasions seems so extraordinary—it is so different from what I, and you too, had any reason to expect, a few days agothat you must bear with be if my manner and my matter also should appear rather confused. Indeed, (said the speaker, much affected and leaning against the wall.) I am not well !

[No language could convey to the reader an idea of the tone in which these last words were uttered, nor of the thrilling effect they had upon his auditors.]

I say not well .- I speak not of physical illness; but it is here | Oh! my God! it is here-[he laid his hand upon his heart] Ah! dearly have I learned to appreciate the sacred conjunction of the invincible Paul-"Let him thinketh be staneth, take heed lest he fall!" I have, indeed, preached to others, and have myself become a castway. If man never forgives me for I have no right to expect forgiveness from To check these outrages the present acman-I, in my present low estate, do still hear a voice from Calvary; I hear those blessed tones of mercy—"My grace is sufficient for thee!" [Here the eloquent speaker covered his face with his hands, and burst into a flood of tears]

Who says that my disgrace is a disgrace to the glorious cause of temperance? Who says that my unworthy apostacyno, no, I will not use that word. Who says my temtation and my weakness entail dishonor upon the great cause of which I have been so unworthy an advocate? Let such, if any there be, compare the loss and and the gain. Let them call up the hosts of redeemed men and women; let them summon the wives and the children who, in every town, by the seaside and by the woods, in city and country, bless God every morning that they rise, and every evening that they lie down, for the glorious pledge—that pledge which snatched a father and a husband from the arms of ruin-that drove back the rushing wave from their dwellingsthat raised the fallen man from the miry pit, and placed his feet upon a rock.

Would they compare my single fault with this redemption? who looks at the sun to see one spot upon his dise, and then swears there is no daylight because that glorious orb contains a few obscurations upon its surface?

Nay what is my own case in connexion with the Great Temperance Cause? what what is a fly upon the mill wheel? what is a drop in the ocean? Have I. indeed evidence of my sincerity? Oh, let those think so accustomed to the intoxicating cup-let them try for one year-for one month-or for one week, to pendants. Every State controls 2,000 conquer the inextinguishable that consumes their being-they will learn how much sincerity is required to abstain, for a short time, from the seductive bowl?

Beloved Brethren! I could not say less, but I must proceed with my narrative. You are already aware—and thanks to the intemperate editors, the public are pretty generally aware of the situation in which I was found. It is necessary that 1 give a detailed account of the facts. I could well wish to be spared this duty: gun ships, four frigates and three steambut, like the Spartan boy, I must nerve ers. Under the guise of an experimental myself to endure, though the fire eat into squadron, it is, in fact, a squadron of ob-effice at the corner of Centre and Read gon, should their landing be deemed ad-

repaired to get a glass of soda water, with suimng that position to carry out the inwho had invited me, whose name it is unneccessary to mention, as I believe he was guiltless of any evil intention. The soda was drawn for me; but the man had no syrup in his shop, and used Lucina Cordial as a substitute. Such was the peculiar effect of this cordial upon me, that I lost the use of my reasoning faculies to a great degree; my old appetite for ardent spirits revived in me, as if some infernal demon had been permitted to -thrown away the compass-and then let loose all the winds of heaven upon my pilotless bark. As I walked down Centre street, I felt the most intense desire for women and wine. As I passed the taverns and bar rooms, I could scarcely resist the inclination to rush in and satisfy my craving appetite.

In passing Lothian's corner, I met s young woman, an acquintance of some years' standing who was tying her shoe. Being dark, I accidentally touched her elbow in passing. She then recognised me and called me by my name; I stopped, and after a moment's conversation, she requested me to call with her and see a fallen sister whom she was desirous of rescuing from the abyss of ruin.

As it is a part of my mission to redeem the lost, and to raise the fallen, I gladly consented, although myself standing on the very precipice that overhung the vortex. I entered with her a house in Walker street, where I found an elderly lady and the sister of my female companion. After a tetidious conversation, a feeling hardly to be described in words came over me-the burning, raging appetite for li-quors. The little which was found in the house only added to the flame. I gave more; and here my memory fails. What happened afterwards, I can no more tell than the maniac who struggles with his chain in the asylum for maniacs. From that moment all is chaos.

My example, more than words, bids 'him that standeth take heed lest he fall." I hope to be again in the field. I hope to stand before the public with all my wounds and bruises upon me-a monument of the deeds of rum-a monument of the mercy of God! I hope to do more than I have ever yet done-to wrest the sceptre from King Alcohol, and trample in the dust the mighty foe from I am delivered

THE TABLES TURNED ON THE ABO-LITIONISTS.

We noticed some time ago, that the survant maid of the family of our fellow citizen, W. B. Hodason, Esq., had been brought up before a Judge at Northampton. Massachusetts, under a writ of habeas corpus. We find from the Northampton papers, that this girl has sued the Aboliionists, who had thus insulted her, and laid her damages at $1000. In default of bail, Dr. Hudson has in consequence been imprisoned. The trial will come on at the October term of Common Pleas, in

We are highly gratified that this case has been brought. It will now be deter-mined whether a Southern gentleman may not pass through the Northern States unmolested by the pestilent, fanatical Abolitionists. Their outrages have so long been tolerated, that they seem to have forgotten that the servants of the South, and their masters, have any personal rights in the North, During the past summer, they have been particularly active in hunting Southerners. The fact of a Southern man being seen with a colored servant, free or slave, has been sufficient ed by a mob of ragamuffins, and to drag the servant by force before a Judge.

It cannot be doubted, that habeas cor pus, in such cases, becomes an instrument of gross outrage and oppression, instead of being a beneficial provision of law .tion was brought. Mr. Hodgson has, moreover, made such complaint before the Grand Jury, that these importinent fellows will be indicted for riot and disturbance of the public peace. He will, besides, bring a civil action against the ringleaders, for damages sustained for loss of services. Last year, a Mississippian was brought back to Northampton, a distance of twenty miles, with a colored servant, under a writ of habeas corpus. In this case, it turned out that the girl, was a free woman. It will hardly be believed that such an outrage was perpetrated with impunity, yet such is the fact. At Utica, in New York, a few weeks ago, a gentleman from North Carolina had his nurse forcibly taken from his house, but she returned to her family with feelings of great indignation at the insult thus offered to her loyalty and attachment. No action in this case was instigated against the rioters.

It is certainly high time that Southerners should know if such outrages are sustained by the laws of the Northern States. It impossible that they can be; and we have no doubt, that before Mr. Hodgson has done with these fanatics, they will learn to respect Southern masters, and their servants too .- Savannah Georgian.

The New York Evening Post, speaking on political patronage, says that the General Government controls the appointment of 14,000 Postmasters, 14,000 Deputies, 1,000 Mail Contractors and Agents, 2,000 Revenue and Lighthouse officers—making in all 31,000 public deappointments, and all of them 54,000.— The General and State Governments, together, control 87,000 men. This is exclusive of Army, Navy and the troops of persons employed by the Executive officers of the National and State Governments.

recently noticed, "consists of two 104 servation, sailing with sealed orders, and In the city of New York, there is a little having on board a full regiment for Ore-streets, of unique construction, being made up principally of glass lights. Here I tory, should circumstruces warrant his asstructions under which he has been sent. Such, we learn from a gentleman directly from England, and who was at Spithead at the time of the sailing of the squadron, was well understood among the officers of the squadron to be the objects of the mission on which they were about starting.

The Chivalry of our Fathers .- During the revolution we had, says the St. Louis American, but twenty five vessels of war, lash the unresisting helm of my judgment of every class; yet small as our little navy was, it shed a halo of glory over the whole land. It was stated in the British Parliament by the first lord of the Admiralty, that the Americans had captured 784 English vessels, worth $12,500,000. At the close of the revolutionary war we had in commission 175 public and private armed vessels, carrying 2500 guns and 14,000 brave and gallant seamen. This force speead over every sea, and for enterprise and daring, never was surpassed in the history of the world. All this time England had 200 ships actively engage i in the service, when the war closed she had but 40 left.

The census of New York has been at ken recently in accordance with an Act passed by the last Legislature of that State. In seventy two cities and towns the increase of population during the last five years has been nearly 23 per cent .-If the increase throughout the rest of the State has been in proportion, to the increase of these cities and towns, the population of New York is half a million greater than in was in 1840.

[Savannah Georgian.

A Praise to the United States .- The schooner Albert, of Boston, and recently commanded by Capt, Woodbury, arrived at the Navy Yard below Philadelphia, Sanday, in charge of a Lieutenant of the Navy and crew placed on board from the U. S. brig Bainbridge, of the Brazil station. The Agwas abandoned to the United States by her commander, after being seized as a slaver. She is now brought in as a prize, and it is said, with some 20 or 30 prisoners on board, either those belonging to the Albert, or some other vessels similarly situated.

A Blow is usually regarded as an indignity, but not always so; for we learn from a Pitsburg paper, that in consequence of the coal soot, of the atmosphere of the American Birmingham, the ladies have rather a troublesome time of it in regard to their faces. Thus says the journal aforesaid, "when a lady's face receives a descending flake, her nearest friend blows it off. To wipe it would only make bay worse, and singular to say, the greates kindness shown; by the ladies to each other is when they come to blows."

Intermarriges and Insanity .- The Cincinnatti Herald contains as article on this subject designed to show that intermarriages of blood relations always tend to de-prave the race, and often lead to insanity. It is shown that in Catholic countries, Protestant countries they are of frequent occurance. Thus in Spain the proportion of instanity is but one to seven thousand one hundred and eighty-four, while in the United States they are one to eight hund-

The Benefits of Advertising .- We were informed yesterday, by one of our Dry Goods' merchants, that one single advertisement was the cause of his selling to one gentleman five silk dresses, which ground for them to apply for a writ of ha-beas corpus, to send the Sheriff to the with the "fixins" amounted to upwards of who shall say what a day may bring forth? private apartments of the family, follow- nienty dollars! This gentleman saw the advertisement in the paper, brought it to town with him, went to the merchant without looking elsewhere, called for the goods, and purchased them.

If one advertisement sells ninety dollars worth of goods, who can estimate the amount that may be sold by advertising all the time .- Petersburg Rebublican.

Diamonds .- While at Gainesville last week, we were shown two diamonds (one weighing, we believe, 31 and the other 31 carats.) which were found in a gold mine belonging to Doctor Banks. We also saw a more valuable Diamond found some time since, and which having been cut in the form of a brilliant, and handsomely set in a breast-pin, is in possession of Doctor Daniell. We learn that the Geological formation of much of Hall county, is favorable for finding these gems, and we doubt not that a few more discoveries will attract increased attento that region of country .- Athens (Ga.)

Improved Fire Engire. The N. Y. Express says that Mr. E Mars of that city has invented a mode of working the Fire Engine, by which it can be operated by a less number of men, and with much greater ease than by the brake, the present mode. By means of a screw, turned in a moment by a crank attached, the machine is lifted from the ground when required to be set in motion, and the hind wheels made to serve as fly wheels. With the aid of a rope attached to the wheels, the machine can be worked by 8 men or 200, so that any person at a fire disposed to lend a hand have only to lay hold of the rope, and assist to give motion to the fly wheels. Mr. M. has obtained a patent, and a machine on his plan is in process of erection, and be ready for service under the direction of the Fire Department, in a few days. It will save the almost insupportable labor now experienced by firemen, and be, without doubt, a most invaluable improvement.

Six thousand persons perished in China during the month of May; four thousand by an earthquake in the Province of Honan, in the centre of the empire, and two thousand by the burning of the Can-ton Theatre. The latter estimate is confirmed by private letters received by the Rainbow. The carthquake is said to have destroyed ten thousand houses.

He was short of news, that told his father was hung.
